is a plus right from the get go. That's why you'll notice the higher percentages of Merlot in the blends, consistent with right bank wines. A couple things to note about the Bordeaux box. It would also make a nice holiday gift for a wine lover. You're paying the equivalent of $7.50 a bottle for Bordeaux from a great year, from a great sub region. The reason for those low prices is simply the tremendously slim margin Costco takes thanks to their membership model. Available at Costco. I'm curious about the other two bottles that I hope to taste soon. Furthermore, if there is an asterisk on the label that means it is a close-out and is not coming back. 100% Malbec from four high altitude estate vineyards in Maipu, Lujan de Cuyo, Tupungato and San Carlos in Mendoza, Argentina.
